Department of Statistics: Inflation Rate for the First Half of 2026 Reached 2.03%

The Department of Statistics issued its monthly report on the Consumer Price Index (CPI) of June 2026, whereby the inflation rate during the first half of 2026 reached 2.03% against 1.98% for the same period in 2025. In June 2026, the inflation rate had reached 2.79% compared to 2.02% during June 2025, and recorded an increase by 0.14% (less than one percentage point) compared to May 2026.

The following table shows the price increase rates during the months of 2025 and during the available period of 2026.

Regarding the contribution of commodities and services groups to the inflation rate recorded during the first half of 2026, inflation was driven by the contribution of the *Rent*s item by approximately 0.70 percentage points, while Transportation contributed approximately 0.43 percentage points, Oils and Fats contributed approximately 0.26 percentage points, and Personal Effects approximately 0.14 percentage points. As for the inflation recorded in June 2026 compared to the same month in 2025, it was driven by the contribution of several goods and services, most notably: Transportation group by approximately 1.27 percentage points, followed by the Rent item with a contribution of 0.76 percentage points, and the Oils and fats item by approximately 0.28 percentage points.

In contrast, the decline in several items' prices limited the inflation increase during June, most notably the Meat and Poultry item, which contributed to a decrease in the inflation rate by about (0.23) percentage points.
